About This Report

The healthcare sector in Switzerland has undergone a transformative development over the last ten years, characterized by dynamism, innovation, and increased exchange. This change manifests itself not only in medical advances, but also in a flourishing event landscape. The number of events has increased dramatically in recent years. New technologies, innovative therapeutic approaches and changing patient requirements have emphasized the need for cross-industry exchange.

Swiss healthcare events are diverse and range from congresses and workshops to innovative symposia. To date, however, there has been a lack of a centralized and timely overview of the dates of these events. This gap meant that many potential participants missed out on important events and the event industry was unable to exploit its full potential. Health-Trends wants to change this and has therefore launched the Swiss Healthcare Report, the first report in Switzerland to provide a comprehensive overview and transparency of 57 major events in the Swiss healthcare sector for 2024. The report is also a response to the growing demand for transparency in the Swiss healthcare event landscape.

This Swiss Healthcare Report is divided into several parts: The annual calendar in the first part offers a clear and concise overview of all relevant events in 2024. Broken down by month, it provides a quick overview of particularly intensive event phases. In the second part, the events are presented in detail chronologically based on each month. Brief descriptions, information on the organizers, the venues and links to the event websites provide readers with a comprehensive basis for planning their individual participation.

As an independent think tank for innovation in the healthcare sector, Health-Trends sees it as its responsibility to further network the Swiss healthcare industry and contribute to the continuation of the impressive developments of recent years. The relevance of this report therefore lies in the creation of transparency and structure in the dynamic world of healthcare events. The event overview not only enables interested parties to better plan their participation, but also increases the effectiveness and reach of the events. Health-Trends not only aims to contribute to a more efficient exchange within the industry, but also to promote the event landscape as a whole. In a time of change and innovation, this report is therefore a contribution to ensuring that no important event is overlooked. May this report help to ensure that the innovative strength of the Swiss healthcare system is experienced and shared even more intensively.
